The New York Herald's correspondent says it is asserted in Washington that Secretary Stanton intends to resign.

The Postoffice Department Monday ordered the reopening of fourteen postoffices in the Southern States.

Wm. Steele, a young merchant of Jersey City, committed suicide on Monday night by bleeding. Cause, temporary derangement.

A white man was killed by a negro, near Alexandria, Virginia, the other day, because he asked the negro to pay him a debt of six dollars.

General Steedman has telegraphed to President Johnson, from New Orleans, recommending the removal of General Sheridan at once.

The grand jury at Albany, New York, found a true bill against General Cole, charging him with murder in the first degree in killing Mr. Hiscock.

Delmonico, who addresses the palate of New York, returns an income of $206,594. Dr. Bushnell, who addresses the intellect of the country, returns an income of $400.

In the Surratt trial, Tuesday, John M. Garrett gave testimony as to seeing Booth at his father's house, in Virginia, two days before Booth was killed.

An Illinois journal has a cheering editorial expressing belief that Mr. Lincoln is still alive, and will turn up in Washington some day to the utter confusion of Andrew Johnson.

Mr. Lord, upon whose property the famous Lord bond robbery was committed, received, in New York, Tuesday, from an unknown source, $1,200,000 of bonds stolen from him; this leaves a deficit of $90,000 still missing.

Mrs. Lizzie M. Maynard and a policeman named Ralph Archibald have been arrested and held to bail, in New York, charged with stealing an illigitimate child belonging to Maria Smith Desmond.

Mayor Monroe, in his speech at New Orleans, said he had not met a single man at the North who approved of General Sheridan's course, and that Radicalism was virtually dead.

The amount voted by Congress for expenses under the Military Reconstruction Law is already nearly or quite exhausted, and an additional adpropriation will be asked at the coming session.

Wendell Phillips has renewed his demand for a session of Congress, for impeachment and confiscation, with increased emphasis since the appearance of the opinion of the Attorney General.

The work of repaving Broadway has been commenced near Battery place. The new pavement is to be an improvement on the Russ plan, the material being of granite. The curve of the street will be changed to four inches.

A squad of paddlers has arrived at Pittsburg, from Holland, to supply the place of the native workmen, who are on a strike. More are on their way, and as evidence that they intend staying, they are bringing over their families.

The New Orleans Crescent states that a magnificent century plant is in full bloom at the Lake House, lake end of the new shell road. Parties who find it inconvenient to visit this natural curiosity now, will have another opportunity of seeing it afforded them in the summer of 1907.

A party of Pittsburgers, representing a capital of three million dollars have commenced buying crude petroleum, for delivery at any time duing 1868, at their option. It is presumed they are setting the traps for a big "corner" in that odorous fluid, in view of its contemplated use as fuel.

The Nashville Banner says it will take two years to wind up the affairs of the Bank of Tennessee. Over two million of dollars due the bank still remain outstanding, which it will be almost impossible to collect until the financial condition of our people materially improves. About one million dollars has been collected since the officers took charge.

The latest story of Bancroft and an outraged grandson, told by a New York correspondent, may be founded on fact or fancy. The historian, as is well known, roughly handled General Schuyler, of Revolutionary fame. "Not long ago," the correspondent says, "Mr. Bancroft met Colonel Hamilton, who is a grandson of Schuyler, and offered him his hand, which Hamilton refused, saying, 'I do not associate with slanderers.'"

The various Catholic bishops that have sailed from the United States to Europe to assist in the celebrating at Rome the eighteen hundredth anniversary of the martyrdom of St. Peter, which takes place in a few days, have taken with them about $400,000. This, added to the donations from South America, makes up the large sum of nearly $1,000,000 to be given to the Holy Father.

A story has been started to the effect that some of the National banks are raising a fund to be used in defeating legislation by Congress prejudicial to their interests. The alleged plan is to assess one sixteenth per cent. on the capital of each bank, which, it is said, would produce a fund of over two millions of dollars. The evidence of these allegations is a circular from a New York banking house, said to have been received at Louisville.

The County Treasurer's office of DeKalb county, Indiana, was entered on the night of the 16th of February last, and the sum of about eighteen thousand dollars was extracted from the safe. A reward was offered of five thousand dollars for the arrest of the thief, and at least half of the money, but up to the seventh of this month no arrest had been made.

The DeWitt Elector of the 8th says that on the previous Thursday a week, S. D., commonly known as Commodore, Tarleton, was killed near the line of Arkansas and Drew counties by a man named Watson. The dispute arose about some cattle. The killing took place near the residence of the latter, and the weapon used was a double barrel shot gun. They lived but a few hundred yards apart, but were not upon very intimate terms prior to the difficulty.

The presence of mind of a stage manager at Philadelphia, on the evening of the 19th, saved an audience in a burning theater from a panic, and probably from loss of life. The manager's speech, who came forward as the audience were expecting the demon dance in the Black Crook, was: "Ladies and Gentlemen: Circumstances compel me to adjourn the play at this moment, and you will oblige me very much by leaving as soon as you can. It is your interest to leave, so do not stand upon the order of your going. What I say now I will explain at another time. Ladies and gentlemen, leave—leave as quietly as you can."

The United States steamer Winooska arrived at Hampton Roads Monday, with over forty cases of yellow fever. The epidemic made its appearance after the vessel left Matanzas under orders from Admiral Palmer, to carry dispatches to the senior officer of the North Atlantic squadron. While running down the coast of Hayti, James Cooper, seaman, died, after exhibiting unmistakable symptoms of black vomit, and was buried at sea. Vigorous measures were taken at once to disinfect the ship thoroughly with chloride of lime, which affected the remaining cases most beneficially. New cases, however, continued to appear, until it threatened to disable the ship entirely, and it was thought necessary to seek a colder climate. Most of the cases are now convalescent, and considered by the medical officers out of danger.

A ten mile trot between the horses Lexington and Captain McGowan came off at the Washington Trotting Park in Providence, on the afternoon of the 19th. The race was against time, for a purse of $500, the horses trotting singly. Lexington started at five minutes past four o'clock, and trotted the first five miles in 14:37½, and the whole distance in 30:57½. The horse kept up well for the first eight miles, but was slow on the ninth, and very much jaded and exhausted on the last. Captain McGowan started at eight minutes past five, and did the first five miles in 15:25½. He trotted nine miles, when one of his legs gave out, from lameness, and he was withdrawn. He made the last mile in 4:33½, and the whole nine miles in 29:22½. Lexington is a bright bay gelding, seven years old, and weighing 950 pounds. The above was his first appearance in public as a trotter.

The New Orleans Times, in a double leaded editorial Tuesday afternoon, speaking of General Sheridan's letter, says: Neither the history of this Republic nor any modern government affords such an instance of flagrant, arrogant presumption and insulting insubordination and defiance by inferior to superior officials, as this letter exhibits. It is not only defiant, but insulting and disrespectful. If the conduct and language of this remarkable document is sanctioned by any considerable portion of the American people, the Constitution of our country had better be consigned at once to the flames, and our republic delivered over to the anarchy and chaos through which poor Mexico has been struggling for the last forty years from the audacity, the ambition, and the turbulence of military chieftains and the overthrow of the authority of civil law, and its constituted interpreters and administrators.

RADICAL TENET.

Ben. Wade Declares for Agrarianism.

His Speech at Lawrence, Kansas.

Correspondence of the New York Times.]

LAWRENCE, KANSAS, June 13.

I was greatly surprised, on returning to Lawrence with the excursion party, to find how imperfectly and inaccurately the local journals report the significant speech delivered in this place on Monday last by Senator Wade. Since some historical importance is likely to be attached to the speech, and inasmuch as the telegram bungled the brief report I sent through that channel, it may be worth while for me to give your readers as full a sketch as possible from the notes I took at the time, and which I fortunately preserved. After the applause with which he was welcomed had somewhat subsided, the Senator remarked that he had no intention of making a speech. He had tried to do so at Omaha, and as he then broke down in the midst of his remarks, he did not feel encouraged to repeat the attempt on the present occasion. Still there were some thoughts which always suggested themselves in Kansas. There the great battle between freedom and slavery had been fought out, and the cause of liberty had triumphed. If the slave power had succeeded there in its infamous efforts, it would have gone on to nationalize the accursed institution; but it was defeated, and now there was not a remnant of it left in the land. [Applause.] Mr. Wade then said that he had kept in advance of the people in the great strife between freedom and slavery, he meant to do the same thing in the contest which had just commenced for extending the right of suffrage to women. He was unqualifiedly in favor of equal rights for all, not only without regard to nationality and color, but with regard to sex. Women are more virtuous than men; their perceptions were quicker and keener; and when they gained political power they would rectify many abuses which had so far remained untouched. If he had not believed that his own wife had sense enough to vote, he never would have married her, [laughter and applause,] and any of those heavers had wives who were unequal to the discharge of the right of suffrage, he would allow them to go home and get divorced at once. [Renewed laughter.] The speaker denounced those women who did not want to vote, because it was not fashionable, and said that he had a prediction to make. Female suffrage would be general in less than twenty years, [a voice—"that's too far off,"] and he thought it likely that in Kansas the next Legislature might set the matter straight. [Applause.] He repeated that he intended to keep in advance of the people on this subject, and that he was now ready to take another jump forward, if necessary. In his view Radicalism upon this and all other questions was righteousness, while Conservatism was hypocrisy and cowardice. The Conservative was a mere lickspittle and hanger on; he was not only willing to be trampled in the dust, but was willing to remain there. As regarded the political situation, he would only say that the Southerners now had the mildest terms offered them they ever would get. If they choose to accept them, well and good; they might have all the advantage of such action; if they refused them, another turn would be given to the screw, and they would be compelled to yield whether they wished or not. Congress had thus far been with the people, and it would not now desert them under the lead of Johnson or the devil. His hearers midgt rest assured of one thing, that reconstruction was as certain to take place as that the sun was shining. Senator Wade then proceeded to say that there was another question upon which he would express his views, although his hearers might differ from him in opinion. We had disposed of the question of slavery, and now that of labor and capital must pass through the ordeal. The shadow of the approaching struggle between these two great interests was already upon us, and it would do no good to turn our backs upon the question. It must be met. Property was not equally divided, and a more equal distribution of capital must be wrought out. That Congress which had done so much for the slave, cannot quietly regard the terrible distinction which exists between the man that labors and him that does not. [Applause.] "If you dullheads," said the speaker, "can't see this, the women will, and will act accordingly." It will not be long before the laborers will demand of canvassers, upon the eve of an election, "what will you do for us?" and they will have a satisfactory answer. It is not right or just that any man should be compelled to labor until life is worn out and being is a curse. The Almighty did not intend that this should be the case, nor will it always remain so. More leisure must be given to the people for mental accomplishments, and labor saving machines had not yet fulfilled their mission, since they had failed to effect this result. Here in Kansas, said the speaker, where every man is a capitalist to a greater or less extent, these inequalities are not so great, and are not so keenly felt as they were in the East, and the speaker would advise every man in that section who is subject to a capitalist in any degree to cut loose from him and get two hours near sundown forthwith. "Men of Kansas," he said, "if you do as much for yourselves as the Almighty has done for you, you will be the lords of creation." Mr. Wade pledged himself to advocate the "natural rights of man" boldly and persistently; spoke of the great commercial results which would inevitably flow from the completion of the Pacific railway, and then referred to the striking fact that the excursion party had, during the two weeks of its journeying, accomplished by rail a distance which would have taken a year to traverse by the old modes of conveyance. He concluded by thanking the people of Lawrence for the cordial welcome and kindly courtesies they had extended to the party he represented. Mr. Wade's speech occupied about half an hour, and this sketch gives a fair idea of its drift. So far as it goes, the speech must be regarded as conclusive, notwithstanding the fact that it was delivered extemporaneously and upon such short notice, for I have it on good authority that Senator Wade has never yet delivered a written speech, nor has he ever revised any of the stenographic reports of the speeches which he has delivered in the Senate. He thinks over a subject closely, arrives at his own conclusions, and then gives them expression in his homely, practical and forcible way, letting the consequences and the speeches thereafter take care of themselves, and never retracing his steps when he has made up his mind to assume any position. Whether this firmness is always true wisdom the public may decide for themselves.

TRAGIC AFFAIR IN ARKANSAS.

The Green Eyed Monster the Cause

The Little Rock Gazette of the 21st learns through a gentleman from Selma, Drew county, that on last Saturday evening Mr. James Austin, a highly respectable citizen of this county while on his way from Selma, was waylaid in the outskirts of the town and shot by Mr. Spivey, an aged citizen of the place, receiving one load through the arm, shivering it, and the other in the body, the shot taking effect in various parts, inflicting frightful wounds. On discharging his gun, finding his victim not killed, he drew a revolver to dispatch him, but relented, moved to softness, it is supposed, by the sight of blood and the protestations of the wounded man that he had never harmed him. A colloquy then ensued, when it was ascertained that jealousy had moved the old man to perpetrate this horrible deed. The two, we learn, had been, a few hours previously, on the most intimate terms of friendship, apparently, Austin, in a familiar manner, having selected the shot and loaded the old man's gun at a store in Selma, the contents of which were intended at the time for his body. It is said that the old man, struck with remorse and contrition for his fatal mistake, was anxious to assist in removing and alleviating the sufferings of the wounded man, but such intense excitement prevailed among the citizens over the outrage that his friends advised him to leave. Every effort is being made to save the wounded man that science and art can suggest, but it is feared that he will not recover. To what extremities of madness will this red-eyed, red-mouthed monster jealousy not drive the human kind?

MISSISSIPPI ITEMS.

The Times says the burnt district in Vicksburg is being rebuilt, and fine iron front stores are going up in other parts of the city.

Richard Mason, a highly esteemed and honorable merchant of Natchez, died on Sunday last. He was a native of Philadelphia, and had lived in Natchez upwards of thirty years.

The Corinth Union, (Radical,) which five months ago, started with a double sheet has come down to a single one, at the same time changing proprietors.

Robin Brown, a freedman about seventy years old, near Enterprise, committed suicide last week by hanging; the act being induced, it is supposed, by religious enthusiasm.

The Clarion says it is understood that a new paper, devoted to the policy of reconstruction, will soon be established in Vicksburg, under the management of Colonels Partridge and Manlove, late of the Herald and Times respectively.

A. G. Horn, Esq., late of the Meridian Messenger, announces his intention of resuming the newspaper business. He will edit and publish the weekly and tri-weekly Meridian Mercury, which will be opposed to reconstruction under the Military Bill.

The Yazoo City Banner gives the following account of the capture of a noted horse thief and suspected murderer: Major Rayford Bell, formerly of the famous Twelfth Mississippi regiment, and Messrs. J. Dillon and M. Hamberlin, from the Satartia neighborhood, made a sudden descent upon and capture of a horse thief who was working in Merz's shoe shop, yesterday morning. Major Bell had captured his chum, Wm. C. Bradley, at Mr. Conesey's last Sunday, and having his hand in, came up with Messrs. Hamberlin and Dillon, who had found out that Porter was in Yazoo City, to assist in finishing the thing. The party arrived here Wednesday night, and yesterday morning knocked around town taking notes. They went into the shoe shop as if they wanted to have some work done, and there sat Porter looking ne sutor ultra crepidam. He began to suspect something from the close scrutiny he was undergoing, and began to draw a pistol. Before he could do it, however, two or three savage looking weapons were leveled at his head. He was taken back to Vernon, the scene of his last operations, and from there he will be sent to Gen. Ord. It has been said that Porter was engaged in the assassination of Major Goodby, of Fort Gibson, but Major Bell thinks this opinion unfounded.

The Canton (Miss.) Citizen of the 22d, says J. T. Cockrell shot his brother some ten miles south of that place, near Pearl River Academy. A quarrel having sprung up between them relative to something connected with the farm, his brother ordered him to leave the farm instantly, and he commenced pulling down the fencing and turning the stock on his crop. He begged his brother to desist, and, upon his refusing, flew into a rage and shot his brother in the head, with a shot gun, inflicting a severe but not dangerous wound. Cockrell went to Jackson to give himself up the authorities at that place.

J. A. La Rocha, F. Dubois, J. G. Becker and H. S. Davies, partners in a fancy dry goods store in New Orleans, were arrested a few days ago, charged with setting fire to the premises for the purpose of defrauding the underwriters. They were betrayed by a clerk. When the officers entered the building, they found boxes and paper saturated with coal oil, piled up behind the counter, with a can of oil in the midst, to which was attached a burning slow match.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

A Young Lady Returning to her Country home, after a sojourn of a few months in the city was hardly recognised by her friends. In place of a coarse, rustic, flushed face, she had a soft ruby complexion of almost marble smoothness, and instead of twenty-three, she really appeared but eighteen. Upon inquiry as to the cause of so great a change, she plainly told them that she used the Orientine Powder, which she considered it an invaluable acquisition to any lady's toilet. By its use any lady or gentleman can improve their personal appearance an hundred fold. It is simple in its combination, nature herself is simple, yet unsurpassed in its efficacy in drawing impurities from, also healing, cleansing and beautifying the skin and complexion. By its direct action on the cuticle it draws from it all its impurities, kindly healing the same, and leaving the surface as nature intended it should be, clear, soft, smooth and beautiful. SENATOR WADE, of Ohio, has recently maue a significant speech at Omaha, Kansas, and THAD. STEVENS has indulged in a conversation of equal import, at his house in Pennsylvania. These men compose the head and front of what they themselves term "progressive Radicalism." The sentiments which STEVENS entertains we published in yesterday's issue. This morning we give those of WADE, as promulgated in Kansas. This man claims to represent the milder views of Radicalism and the deformed ironmonger those of the more hyena like. One proposes to use the guillotine and battle axe upon the vitality of the South, while the other, with a loud-sounding-glory-hallelujah of wide spread brotherly love for all mankind, extends his hand, encased in the unfeeling iron glove of covered velvet, towards the same section. STEVENS has a boldness in his expressions of hatred and revenge toward our people, worthy of the Austrian hero, who lashed, in public, the sisterhood of the mother who bore him. He does nothing to conceal the fiendishness of his nature towards us who have the misfortune to be his fellow men. He makes no pretense of anything other than the vengeful disposition he bears us, among the people who surround him, but who oppose and would restrain him. Confiscation, insult and degradation for every being this side the Ohio river gleams upon his flag and nerves his arm. The recollection of the mills which were burned by the Confederates, those apples of his eye, strengthens his "heart and steels his sword" for Southern ruin and impoverishment—he gloats with delight when, through him, the ashes of desolation shall lie upon the debris of our homesteads and factories as they once, in war, settled upon his iron works at Lancaster. He is a monster, crammed with the bitterest gall of all the worst passions, and he frankly permits the world to know it. For this much, he certainly deserves credit. He wears his foul heart upon his sleeve. Not so with his colaborer, WADE, though both are bent on the same purposes. While just now upon different roads, on the march of "progressive Radicalism," they will join their forces to gain the same ends in the halls of Congress, should not a returning sense of justice, right and humanity impel the honest masses of the American people to stop their dishonorable and malignant movements. STEVENS asserts in sententious and unmistakable language that he will not permit reconstruction of the rebel States without confiscation, even if the Northern demand for the rights, privileges and protection to the negro be faithfully met. "No," he thunders; should all these be given, Radicalism will not let the South see peace. While STEVENS proclaims this in Pennsylvania, WADE, upon the stump in Kansas, says the South has the opportunity to take her place in the National Legislature upon the terms of the offered reconstruction act. "But," continues he, "that Congress which has done so much for the slave cannot quietly disregard the distinction between the man that fakes and him that does not." "Property is not equally divided, and a more equal distribution of capital must be wrought out." "The question of slavery having been disposed of, now that of labor and capital must go through the same ordeal." Where, we ask the sensible man, is the difference—the vital and material difference—between Radicalism as enunciated by STEVENS and Radicalism asserted by WADE? One demands that reconstruction must be accompanied by confiscation sufficient to indemnify "loyal" losses, during the war, and the other that it may be accomplished without that requisite, but that afterwards, if we choose, the property of the south, representing his idea of "capital" must be equally divided, by Congressional act, with the liberated negro, who represents "labor." Senator WADE follows up this idea, during his speech, to a successful culmination in his own mind, by declaring to the men of Kansas that if they do not assist with might and main, he has a more power, ful engine to aid him, in the "women" around whose brows the elective franchise is to be wreathed. It is true that this Senatorial front of the "mild Radicals" does not, in the Omaha harangue, confine his agrarian idea of dividing up the lands with the negro to the Southern section alone, and with a pretense of universal application declares that it is needed in the "East." How wide spread, how fair, how grand, and oh! how sublime! Where are the people in the "East," the North or the West, who will stand by the side of Senator WADE and divide up the lands of their homesteads for the "slaves" which that Congress has done so much for," and "which cannot quietly disregard" the distinction now observed between them and capital? What close observer in human nature has discovered this noble impulse in the character of those or any people upon this continent? When did this "noble CÆSAR," who proposes to put the landed wealth of North America "into the general coffer," discover a disposition in his own people to divest themselves of their acres for the negro whom Congress "has done so much for?" If the men don't, though, says he, the "women" will. Let him go and ask those of the "women" in the East, the West and the North, who, with their husbands, kindred and friends, plundered from the South its wealth, its pi-

The United States District Court of the Southern District of New York decided, a few days since, that whenever spirits are seized for violation of the law, the owner must be prepared to prove that the law has been complied with and the tax paid, if he would save his whisky from forfeiture. This is a decision of far reaching importance.

The Appeal Court of Paris has reversed the judgment allowing the sale of the Dumas and Menken photographs. The Superior Court says that even if M. The TEXAS Jimplecute mentions as a curious affair in Jefferson, the cutting of one freedwoman's throat by another, and although no doubt of the fact existed, no proof could be found and no arrests were made. The Jimplecute remarks: "But a few days ago, when a f. m. c. was killed by 'white folks,' a great to do was made and a big funeral the result; and now when one of the 'nation's pet negroes' kills one of the same kind, no proof can be found and everything is kept dark. Thus it seems that they have a perfect right to 'kill each other.' We suppose this is one plank in the Radical platform."

The President left Hartford this morning, and was received at the depot here with cheers from a large crowd, and was escorted to the City Hall by the military. A salute was fired and the bells rung and flags displayed. Governor English introduced the President to the Mayor, who extended to him a welcome.

The President returned thanks for this manifestation of respect, not only to him as a citizen, but as Chief Magistrate of the country, and said: "I have tried to be President of the whole United States, and not a part thereof. There are two kinds of courage, one physical, which enables men to meet on the battle-field, the other is a moral one, which gives a man strength to stand in the council of nations and face those who may endeavor to overthrow our liberties. In the midst of all this I had but one anchor, from which I never permitted myself to be cut loose. Conscientious conviction was my courage, the public good my aim and the Constitution my guide." He further stated that the storm has passed and the skies are becoming brighter; then why could they not all unite in one common effort to restore peace and concord to the country?

The President was frequently applauded, and three cheers were given at the close of his remarks.

Mr. Seward was also introduced and made a few remarks of a complimentary nature and said: "What I have observed in Connecticut, is that her people have a wonderful faculty, not only for teaching, but also for making a great many things out of it. If it is peace, they make a profit, and if it is war, it is making warlike instruments, and I am happy to state that I see a diffusion of knowledge in your State, which keeps pace with your skill in labor."

KILLING OF A BRITISH OFFICER BY A UNITED STATES SOLDIER.

A Military Murder.

A private letter received at St. Louis, from the steamer Octarcon, on her way to Fort Benton with Government stores and troops, dated near Fort Union, gives an account of the death of Captain W. D. Speer of the British army, a passenger, who was shot dead by a sentinel. The facts of the case were these: Sentinels had been posted on the roof to watch the banks at night, so as to give warning of the approach of Indians. Captain Speer started to go to his room, which was in the texas, about twelve o'clock at night, and when about to enter was fired upon by a sentinel stationed aft of the texas, killing him instantly. From the testimony taken by the commission appointed by the passengers, it appeared that the sentinel did not challenge Captain Speer, but fired without halting him.

The sentinel is now under arrest. He was under the care of the Military authorities at Fort Buford. The captain of the boat states that sentinels were not at all necessary for the safety of the boat or passengers, and were placed on the roof by the Lieutenant commanding, with express orders not to interfere with the passengers.

IMPORTANT VERDICT.

Bank of Tennessee vs. the Union Bank of Louisiana.

This was a case determined in the United States Circuit Court at New Orleans on Thursday. It was a trial by jury, Judge Durell presiding. It was an action brought by the Bank of Tennessee against the Union Bank of Louisiana to recover a balance of $22,000 due the former at the time of the occupation of the city of New Orleans by the Federal forces, in 1862. It seems that in September 1861, at the time of a suspension of specie payments by the banks in New Orleans, the Bank of Tennessee was indebted to the Union Bank of Louisiana to the amount of $1900, which balance was covered by remittance from the Bank of Tennessee to the Union Bank in Confederate money; and large amounts in the same currency remitted to the Union Bank, to be drawn against by the Bank of Tennessee, and the drafts paid in that currency.

By a general order Major General Butler prohibited the circulation of Confederate currency, and required the banks of this city—the Union Bank among them—to pay their depositors in currency, then United States treasury notes or specie, but allowed them to issue their own notes in lieu thereof, to be redeemed in currency.

No one represented the Bank of Tennessee at that time, the balance due it was retained in the Union Bank in Confederate currency, subject to the order of the Bank of Tennessee. As late as 1863, at the time General Banks issued order No. 292, no demand had been made upon the Union Bank for the balance due the Bank of Tennessee.

By that order the banks having in their possession funds belonging to enemies, etc., were required to turn over the same to the chief quartermaster of the department. The amount due the Bank of Tennessee was so transferred by the Union Bank, and a receipt taken, together with funds of the same description belonging to other parties. All this was received by the quartermaster in Confederate currency.

Counsel for the plaintiff held that no consideration had been given for the liability of the Union Bank to the Bank of Tennessee, the currency of the Confederacy being then worthless, although they acknowledged the right of power of the general commanding to seize the funds in the hands of the Union Bank, and that consequently the indebtedness had not been liquidated.

The defense contended that all transactions in Confederate money were illegal and void, but even admitting the trade as legal, the payment under the order of the commanding general was a quittance to the Union Bank of Louisiana, and if the military authorities thought proper to receive the amount due the Bank of Tennessee in Confederate money, the Union Bank was relieved from all responsibility, the military authorities having it in their power to demand payment in such funds as they deemed proper.

The jury finding no cause for action on account of the illegality of the transactions in Confederate currency, and that besides this the Union Bank had paid the quartermaster of department the balance due in such funds as the department chose to accept, rendered a verdict as above. The case was argued by Mr. Billings for the Bank of Tennessee, and by Messrs. Bradford and Finney for the Union Bank.

HOMESTEAD LANDS

FOR SALE.

WE have the pleasure of placing on the market these very desirable and valuable lands, so well known to the community as the Homestead Tract of the late Geraldine Beauregard, situated on the first station on the Memphis and Charleston railroad, five miles east of the city. The improvement, with about twenty acres of land, have been recently put in thorough repair. The entire tract, containing about 60 acres, has been laid off in lots varying in size from five to ten acres, fronting upon broad avenues, and laid off so as to secure the greatest amount of comfort. The lands of the Memphis and Charleston railroad afford the opportunity of going in and out of the city, from and to Raleigh's Station, four times a day, so as to make a residence at this point almost as convenient as to live in the city itself.

The entire can now be had of lots wholly or part in original forest, or in field.

IN EXCHANGE FOR CITY PROPERTY.

The executors are directed by the will to sell this place and invest in city property, and we will receive propositions to exchange for either improved or vacant lots in the city.

To all parties looking for a suburban residence we do not think any property more desirable can be found, in regard to health, convenience or good neighborhood, within the same distance from the city.

The terms will be made very liberal and easy, and the prices low to parties desiring to buy for speculation.

Plans of the subdivision will be shown at our office.

SECOND DRAWING

OF THE

SOUTHERN ASYLUM LAND CO.

TO BE HELD

AT HERNANDO, MISS., AUGUST, 1867

THE FIRST DRAWING, which took place at Hernando Miss., on the 15th instant, was attended with unusual success, when it is remembered that but a few weeks elapsed from the inception of the enterprise to the drawing. MR. GREENLAW AS A SHOWMAN.

Gen. J. L. Alcorn Don't Draw Well.

Mr. Greenlaw, H. G. Smith, Esq., Charles Kortrecht, Esq., and two other gentlemen, had their show in the Memphis Club Room last night, and about fifty persons heard General Alcorn, of Mississippi, speak his speech. It was not much of a speech even for Memphis. Not foolish, for General Alcorn is a very able man. Not badly delivered, for he speaks fluently. Not original, for it did not present, in the first hour and a half, any very new ideas. He said:

The Southern people should jump at the chance offered in the military bill. It will be worse for them if they don't. They should not sympathize with any party in the North, but if they will sympathize with one or other of the great parties in the North, they should prefer an alliance with the Republican party, because it is strong and has most of the wealthy men of the North, while it rather than an alliance with the Democratic party, which is weak and not able to help us, and wasn't any more our friend during the war than the Republican party is. We should not pay regard to confiscation as a principle of the Radical party, although Stevens and some other Radical leaders favored it. We should not say a word in favor of repudiation of the national debt, for that would array the wealthy men of the North against us. These leading ideas were flavored with explanations of how he came to speak when he was asked. Negro suffrage is inevitable. In Southern states white people didn't vote under the military bill, they might be disfranchised. The South should not have allowed herself to be drawn into the contest between the President and Congress. Congress is the law-making power. Radicals are not especially obnoxious to the people of the South, and he never thought the Constitution favored the idea of secession. Two or three gentlemen applauded two or three times.

INTERESTING CORRESPONDENCE.

Postal-Lomon Communications.

The following letters will be read with interest:

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 27, 1867.

HANS LEMON, Esq.—DEAR SIR: I see by the morning papers that charges were made at a meeting of the Council, last evening, to the effect that I was a partner of Messrs. Hopper & Montgomery, and, as such, made distinct offers to bribe certain members of the Council, you among the number. I certainly never intended to intimate that I was a partner of the gentlemen referred to, nor did I attempt to bribe you. I have no interest, directly or indirectly, in the contract of Messrs. Hopper & Montgomery, and my remarks in this city, and shortly to be issued, by friendly consideration only.

Let me hear from you, and be kind enough to place me right before the Council and the community.

Yours, respectfully,
W. C. POSTAL.

MEMPHIS, TENNESSEE, June 27, 1867.

W. C. Postal, Esq.:

DEAR SIR: Your note of this date was handed to me by Captain, W. Jay Johnson to-day. It gives me a great deal of pleasure to say to you, and inform the public also, that you did not say to me that you were a partner of Hopper & Montgomery, but that you expected to be interested, in case those gentlemen obtained the contract for paving the streets. In regard to the charge made in the City Council, that you had offered to bribe me to secure the contract to Hopper & Montgomery, I beg to say that, in view of the statement made in your letter, I am compelled to acknowledge that the charge was erroneous, and not intended as such.

Yours, respectfully,
H. LEMON.

PREVALENCE OF CRIME.

The Police Useless in Preventing Robberies.

On Wednesday night there were reported about sixteen robberies—all of them of small amounts of property and money. In no case did the thieves make a big haul. This was no fault of the police. It must be attributed to the fact that the thieves visited the wrong localities, or were in too much haste.

From Loeb & Bro., No. 273½ Main street, they took a lot of clothing, mainly pants.

From J. B. Sutton, No. 244 Second street, they took property worth ten or fifteen dollars.

From R. Pegram, No. 246 Second street, they took several valuable pairs of boots.

From Lawrence & Co.'s saloon, corner of Gayoso and Main streets, they got a gold watch.

From a dairy store they got forty dollars.

And from seven sleeping rooms, reported to have been entered in different parts of the city, they carried off small sums of money, clothing, watches and jewelry.

Not a night passes in which there are not at least half a dozen robberies. The town is full of thieves of different sorts, but professional rogues are rarely caught, unless they are petty ones. Either the Metropolitan Police fries and can't prevent robberies and catch thieves, or it could prevent robberies and catch thieves, and don't try to do so. The taxes of the people of Memphis is over five hundred dollars a day on an average the year round. To this $182,500 should be added the whole of the city revenues from taxes on privileges and the whole collections from fines and forfeitures and black mail; all these making a grand total of half a million dollars a year must be charged to the Brownlow State police fastened most unconstitutionally on Memphis. It cannot be said that any considerable deduction should be made from this on account of the recaptures of stolen goods by the police. Among our readers are thousands who have had property stolen since the Metropolitan Police managed things, but not one in a hundred has got back any part of what he had stolen from him. The police is nothing but a political, mercenary machine.

Isn't it astonishing, the way the rush still continues at Elson's great clearing sale? For the past two weeks their large store has been crowded with ladies and gentlemen anxious to secure the great bargains this popular concern offer at their great clearing sale (which, by the way, have become a fixed feature in the city). Damaged goods are extraordinarily high when compared with the prices which rule at Elson's. Parties in want of good goods, at low prices, will do well to attend to Elson's advertisement. F,S&T

SECOND DRAWING.—The first drawing of the Southern Asylum at Hernando demonstrates the practicability of the plan of disposing of lands by the Southern Asylum. Although a limited amount of property was disposed of, this was owing to the tightness of the money market, the brief time allowed for selling tickets, and the insufficiency of agents throughout the country. All these last defects are now being remedied as fast as possible, an absolute scheme of splendid prizes is offered, which must attract the attention of the public and invite investment. The first prize is the magnificent property of Colonel M. C. Galloway, on the corner of Court and Third streets, in the very heart of the city. The fortunate drawer of this prize will at once secure a handsome fortune by the investment of a small sum, which is well worth the hazard, especially when his chances are still further enhanced by nine other attractive prizes.

ROGUERY IN MEMPHIS.

Professional Thieves and Doubtful Characters.

Any man who is well informed in relation to police matters knows that three honest men, with the power possessed by the Metropolitan Police Commissioners, and having a dozen subordinates at their command, could drive every professional thief out of Memphis. They could not guard all property, patrol all streets, and prevent all robberies, but, driving away all known professional thieves, they could greatly reduce the number of robberies, larcenies, swindles, burglaries and other offenses that now daily occur. If three honest men and a dozen subordinates could do so, why is it that the costly Metropolitan Police is so powerless? It don't drive out known professional thieves. Don't its executive head want to do so? Don't he know how? Bah! It is more profitable to let things alone, and devote the police department to frightening negroes into voting for Brownlow. The patrolmen are not to blame. Nobody is to blame but Beaumont and the Brownlow leaders, who fastened this State police on Memphis, contrary to the will of the people.

One of the subordinates furnishes to us a brief resume of the criminal population of Memphis. He is well informed, is reliable. He says that, having made careful examination, he considers that there are in Memphis at this time:

Thirty mackerels, from seven to sixteen years of age—desperate young thieves, who should be in a house of correction.

Seven professional white pick pockets.

Fifty professional white burglars and sneak thieves—most of them what are known as sneaks, or third class burglars.

Ten professional white confidence men.

Eleven professional white hotel and boarding house thieves.

Twenty professional white garroters and robbers of lushers (i. e., drunken men.)

Twenty-two colored professional burglars and sneak thieves.

Over two hundred colored male and female petty larceny and clothes line thieves.

Seven colored mackerels.

There are fifteen white forgers, confidence and false pretense rogues.

Midway between these rogues and the great body of our citizens are sporting men and prostitutes, who may or may not be thieves, but who follow illegal courses, and require more supervision of authorities than legitimate business men. There are five leading keno rooms having between three and four hundred visitors nightly. There are seven leading faro banks, and two games of brace. There are altogether near two hundred professional gamblers who average from five to eight victims a day. There are the leading houses of infame kept by Mesdames Whitus, Stoner, Melrose, Kane, Hayden, Moody, Freeman, French Lou, Fisher, Munford, and Gray. There are seven others of nearly equal prominence. There are nineteen third rate houses of similar character. There are five leading houses of the same set with colored inmates, and fifteen lower cribs. There are ten houses of assignation, and there are between eight hundred and a thousand prostitutes in Memphis. If all this and more ain't known to Beaumont and his directors, then he and they are not fit for their places. How can it be that the police don't know it when gambling houses pay one hundred dollars a month; houses of ill fame twenty-five dollars each, and each prostitute ten. When they don't pay quietly there is a descent, and a fine or forfeiture equal to the amount that subscriber would be quietly collected without interfering with the business of the parties paying.

The law makes it the duty of Beaumont to report such cases to the public when he knows of them. Don't he know of them? Has he ever reported a single gambling house or house of ill fame to the grand jury? Not one, if report speaks true. Certainly if he has the grand jury hain't believed him under oath, for they found no true bill on his information.

A NEW KIND OF PAVEMENT.

Claimed to be Superior to the Nicolson.

A curious discovery has recently been made in England and patented for practical purposes. It has been known that silicious rock dissolved in caustic soda at high temperatures produced liquid silex; but it was recently found that this liquid silex, known as flint soap could be made intensely hard in a few minutes by the addition of chloride of calcium. Rock can thus be made of any size or shape, and so hard that it will give out a semi-metallic ring when struck. Such rock can be used in buildings, in the manufacture of cornices and mouldings. The sills of doors and windows, mortuary monuments, and for many other purposes. It is hard, durable and less susceptible than most common rock to atmospheric influences. It costs about twice as much as brick, and about one-third as much as uncut stone and one-tenth as much as best dressed stone work. A company has just been formed in this city to purchase from the inventor patentee the right to use this concrete stone in this section. Mr. J. T. Trezevant, who is an active member of this company, states that by mixing sand with the flint soap, and using common chloride of calcium, he can in a few minutes produce a stone that is very hard, and that would be well adapted for paving. He has made a model to show small pyramidical blocks of this stone with the interstices between them filled in with gravel in coal tar. The blocks could be set directly upon sand foundation, and this pavement would be almost impenetrable—yet have all the advantages of the Nicolson. Some idea of the relative cost of this new material and other stonb may be had from the fact that curbing with this Ransom's concrete stone would cost seventy-five cents per foot, while the curbing for the Nicolson is to cost from $1 60 to $1 75 per foot.

HEISKELL'S DIGEST.—We have been furnished a proof sheet of the first forms of a Digest of the Reported Decisions of the State of Tennessee, by Hon. Joseph B. Heiskell, a member of the Memphis Bar, in press in the Bulletin steam printing establishment in this city, and shortly to be issued. We are struck with the beautiful typography and style of the work. Of its legal merits, etc., we do not discuss, until a fuller opportunity, though from what we have heard of it from professional men, it will, no doubt, be a work of the highest standard. As it will embrace the decisions down to the time of publication, it will supply a great need of the profession. Those who desire the earliest copies should send in their orders at once.

At a meeting of a portion of the citizens of Tipton county, convened at Covington, on Tuesday, June 25, 1867, Nat. Tipton chairman and J. T. Douglas secretary. H. R. Bate, from the committee composed of H. R. Bate, P. Smith, G. W. Smithson, J. Bledsoe and H. Maley, reported the following resolutions which were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, The Conservative Convention, recently held in Memphis, to nominate candidates, including that of Floater for the counties of Shelby, Fayette and Tipton, did not nominate a candidate for Floater, but pledged itself to abide the decision of Tipton county: It is therefore

Resolved, That, in view of the crisis impending over our country, we know of no man more eminently qualified than General P. R. Glenn, of Fayette, and that for his large experience, his ability, integrity and tried patriotism, we nominate him as the Conservative candidate for Floater to represent us in the Legislature of Tennessee. It was further

ANOTHER WALKING MATCH.

Kirwin, the Walking Boy, Matched for $500.

A walking match of two hundred and forty miles in two hundred and forty hours—not more than one mile in any one hour—was made on yesterday.

Captain W. W. Joyce bets George Kirwan, the walking boy who won the late match, five hundred dollars that he cannot do the job. Kirwan is only seventeen years of age, is a native of Tennessee, and is a boy of splendid physical development and great pluck. In his late match he won, walking one hundred and twenty miles in one hundred and twenty hours.

CRIMINAL COURT.—Yesterday the case of S. B. Beaumont and A. P. Burditt, concealing stolen goods, was commenced and will be concluded to-day. A severance was granted at last term—S. B. Beaumont being on trial at present. It will be remembered that sometime last summer Mr. A. Marchand, of New Orleans, came to this city in search of a lot of jewelry which had been taken from his establishment by burglars. These burglars were arrested by officer Stonebraker, and some of the jewelry recovered, the burglars escaped from the officer. The jewelry went into the hands of the defendants as Metropolitan Police subordinates. They refused to give it up to Mr. Marchand, but eventually surrendered it on writ of replevin. The Grand Jury found a true bill against them for concealing stolen goods. Hence the criminal prosecution. The State made a motion for a continuance on affidavit on the grounds of the materiality of absent witnesses, Stonebraker being one of them. The counsel of the defendant admitted the allegations of the affidavit, and insisted on a trial, which admission rendered a continuance as to these witnesses unnecessary. The Attorney General prosecutes the pleas of the State. The defendant is represented by Judge A. Wright, General Hume, Colonel McRae and Colonel Cameron. Ten jurors were obtained. Seventeen jurors were issued last evening. Should this case conclude in time, the cases set for to-day will be taken up. They are as follows:

George Carr—larceny.
T. Johnson—malicious shooting.

PANIC STRUCK BEAUTY.—It is a terrible shock to charming woman—indeed, to any woman—to find that her teeth are "beginning to go." Never will any human being who uses the fragrant Sozodont while the teeth are still sound make that discovery. Even when decay has commenced, it immediately stops its progress.

John Haley was arrested for cruelty to animals, he having passed a terrible jerk on his refractory mule. He shouldn't be fined, but placed so that the mule could kick him well.

On Tuesday last Mr. C. P. Oakley, agent of the Tennessee and Mississippi railroad, was in New Orleans on a flying visit, and left for his home in Memphis, bearing with him the good wishes of the New Orleans newspapers.

An attempt was made to enter burglariously, a small grocery store on Union near Wellington street, by cutting through a window, but the cutting was heard and a shot from a revolver drove off the rascals.

The closing exercises of the Memphis city schools come off last evening in the Greenlaw Opera House, and were well attended. The children did well, and the parents were delighted with the recitations, the singing, and the dramatic attempts.

"Is there any news from the seat of war?" said a Conservative to a Radical friend yesterday. "We have no war; all is peace and quiet," was the response. "Why, then," said the Conservative, "do you fellows keep on all the time talking about rebels?" The Radical made no response.

So much property has not been put down on the Assessors' books, that a supplemental list has been made out by the Tax Collector, where parties have come forward to pay taxes not charged on the books by the Assessors to anybody, and this supplemental list now fills over sixty large folio pages.

It is believed that the sewer and crossing at the intersection of Second and Monroe streets, now being put down a la Nicolson, will be nuisances. The sewer is not deep enough, and mud will soon become a great nuisance, and the crossing is found so small that it cannot carry off the water in case of hard rains. Mr. Jones should see to this.

An old soaker in this city, who has drank his spirits regularly for twenty years, never does so without standing silently in front of the bar for a couple of minutes, while he asks mentally a blessing on the beverage. He thinks full well would do so if liquor would not be injurious in so many ways.

A friend sends us a cotton bloom which grew on the plantation of Col. Jarmagin, of Rosedale, Bolivar county, Mississippi. Col. J. has one of the finest plantations in river bottom land, beautifully situated for safety from inundation. The bloom was pulled on June 23th. Col. J. has a promising crop of six hundred acres, and notwithstanding the backward nature of the season, blooms are showing themselves quite numerously in his fields.

A gentleman from Carroll county whose business gives him the best chances for forming a correct opinion, says that the Etheridge men are active and excited, while the Brownlow-Fisherites, led by Hawkins, are splitinto two factions—moderates and mad dogs, or sometimes known as extremists and moderates, who hate each other intensely. The moderates have some regard for the prosperity of the State. The extremists are mostly men who deserted from the Confederate army, and now think it necessary to demonstrate their loyalty by extreme opinions and proscriptions.

Judge Hunter keeps up a show of don't care, and tries to smile, but is said to be really much troubled in relation to the political situation. It is said that there is some excitement in town, a spiritual circle that seeks to dive into futurity, in advance of other people, and this circle has recently been interrogating the spirits as to who would be the next Governor of Tennessee. The spirits showed their sense by guessing Etheridge and a number of Radicals are sorely troubled over this wanton insult to their candidate. Each spirit called up made the same response, and one had the effrontery to tell the inquirers that they were "a set of dogoned fools" (whatever that is). If they bought Brownlow could be elected by barefaced cheating.

THE FREEDMEN'S BUREAU AGAIN.

Another Case of Sharp Practice.

A friend, under the caption of "Dog eat dog," sends us a communication in relation to a case in which General Runkle, who was for a while head of the Freedmen's Bureau in this city, figured. It seems that E. H. Flynn, a Radical of the genuine breed, bought a house at a tax sale for an insignificant sum, but the case was so glaring that he found difficulty in getting possession. The allegation is that he proposed to Runkle to give him vouchers in advance for twelve months rent of the house, at $100 a month, if he would use his authority as head of the Freedmen's Bureau, to take possession of the house and turn it over to Flynn. Runkle, it is said, did so, got the vouchers, and as the months went by, sent his vouchers to Washington as if he had paid Flynn the money, and then pocketed himself the $100 that Government allowed. Flynn, at the end of six or seven months, wanted Runkle to hand over the house, but he wouldn't do it. Flynn consulted a lawyer about it, but Runkle held on. He wanted his $100 a month from Government for living for nothing in the house that Flynn didn't own but wanted to get into his possession.

THURSDAY'S NOON DISPATCHES.

Facts and Fancies from Washington

A July Session of Congress Certain.

The Impeachment Committee at Work.

The Indians Becoming Troublesome in Dakota.

Operations of a Dishonest City Treasurer.

Continuation of the Surratt Trial.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The sentiment of the dozen Congressmen now here regarding the July session, is that it will be a short one, with provisions for a contingent meeting in October. Governor Boutwell, who heads the impeachment report, will be brought up during the July session.

HARTFORD, June 27.—Salutes were fired on the arrival of the President, and the Mayor delivered a speech of welcome. The reception of the President was enthusiastic. The party left to-day for New Haven.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Thirty-four Senators have written that they will be here in one week from to-morrow, which makes four more than a quorum.

The Joint or House Committee met to-day, with Senator Cameron and Messrs. Bosler and Schenck, of the House, present.

Senator Drake and Logan will arrive to make up a quorum.

John Hoy, Charge d'Affairs at Vienna, is about to leave for that place.

General Campbell, Indian Agent, arrived in this city last evening, direct from Old Fort Sully, Dakota Territory. He says that the Sioux Indians in that territory have recently become very troublesome, killing white traders stealing horses, etc.

Gen. Sully's request to the War Department to re-instate him in the command has been denied.

Both of the administration paper here demand the removal of General Sherman, and despatches have been sent to-day to San Francisco, urging that it be done. It is well understood here that nothing will be done in the premises until the President returns.

NEW YORK, June 27.—A New Orleans special says Mayor Heath has announced to the City Council the fraudulent over issue of $400,000 of city notes by the City Treasurer. The Mayor says the city cannot be made liable for the redemption of the paper issued. City scrip has depreciated 2½ per cent. Merchants utterly refuse to receive it in business transactions.

Governor Wells, owing to the inactivity of the Washington Administration in his case, has determined to issue a proclamation declaring himself Governor and Flanders a usurper, and declaring null and void the action brought to oust insurgents, and ordering civil officers not to obey his orders. This he believes to be in accordance with the law, as expressed in the Attorney General's opinion. This will no doubt be construed by the President to set in the provisions. It is said that Wells takes this course by advice of several lawyers here. His proclamation will be issued in a day or two, unless the President interferes.

The Surratt trial to-day related wholly to the pursuit and capture of Booth by one of the Garrotts, at whose farm house Booth remained two days. He gave an interesting statement of the latter's sojourn there, but it contained nothing relative to the prisoner.

Colonel Conger repeated his testimony of the details as to Booth's death, and testified that the diary which was produced in court was in the same condition as when he took it from Booth's person.

The prisoner evinced the deepest interest over the testimony relating to the last hours of Booth, and when the diary was produced, examined it in company with his counsel for at least twenty minutes. They immediately examined that portion of the book where the leaves had been cut out, and even used a magnifying glass to see if something could not be detected not apparent to the naked eye. Afterwards the jury examined the diary, firearms and breastpin, all taken from the body of Booth.

The House Judiciary Committee assembled to-morrow to close up the impeachment investigation. Several Members of Congress arrived in town to-night. It is said that more evidence will be taken this week.

LATE AND INTERESTING FROM BRAZIL.

The Mobile Emigrants Safely Arrived Out.

How They Like the Country and What They Expect to Do.

Mr. Dunn "Done Brown."

[From the Register and Advertiser of Tuesday.]

We were much gratified this morning at the perusal of a private letter from one of our old subscribers, Mr. E. S. Trigg, of this county, to his son in the city, from which we are permitted to extract the following interesting information:

Mr. Trigg, who writes from Rio de Janerio, May 20th, states that he and his party had a very pleasant trip out; that they were on the water thirty-one days, which passed like a dream. Of Mr. Dunn, who made up the colony, Mr. Trigg says: "I shipped with Dunn's colony, but would not locate in his colony under any circumstances. I have no confidence in him, either as an honest man or a gentleman. I look upon him as a swindler."

Mr. Trigg advises all emigrants who have not the money to pay their way out, to go out under the auspices of the Brazilian government and then locate themselves wherever they please. He is delighted with the country, and advises his son to sell out here and go to Brazil at once. He says: "I lost sight of the North Star when I crossed the equator, and I never intend to see it again. I am delighted with Brazil; it is my home for life.

"We have been here several days," he continues, "where I think they have the best Government and the best people in the world. You will be delighted when you get here. I am not able to describe anything to you, or I could write till the sun sets. The little boys will give you all particulars."

Two days later Mr. Trigg writes: "We had a desperate row with Dunn yesterday. There are not more than a half a dozen going with him, and they go on compulsion, he having borrowed their money. I have lost $75 in gold by him. He is the most contemptible villian I ever saw. The Texans who were wrecked reached here yesterday with McMillan. They came as a band of brothers, and the greater number of us are going to McMillan's colony.

"This is the seventh day we have been here. Mr. Wetsinger and I are going to the province of Espirito Santo, forty miles up the river Doce, and half way between this city and Gunter's colony, (Bahia.) Gunter is from Montgomery. Kennedy is going to province Minos Geraes. Owen goes with him. I will not leave here until Monday the twenty-seventh.

"Mr. Emerson, a Presbyterian minister, is from Meridian, Miss. There are about 700 of us here. Our hotel was once the Emperor's palace. There are several Texas emigrants who are between seventy and eighty years old.

"We have been very busy to-day buying our provisions, cooking utensils, etc. You can get anything here you want. Many brought furniture out with them, but you can buy it here one hundred per cent cheaper than you can in Mobile, and it is the nicest furniture I ever saw. Everything else can be had at the same rate."

"A steamer leaves here for New York on the 25th of each month, and leaves that city on the 22d of each month.

"The Emperor called to see us yesterday. It would have done you good to have heard us cheer him. He had a great deal to say to the little boys and girls. He was very plainly dressed."

Mr. Trigg again expressed himself delighted with the country, the government, and the people, and concludes his letter thus:

"Tell Mrs. Fulton to come with your mama and Dr. Cox. Would that Dr. Borden were here. My respects to Mr. Huddleston and Mr. Booch, and tell everybody to come to Brazil."

Letters for Mr. Trigg should be addressed to Rio de Janeiro, care of W. C. Emerson.

Stephen Joseph Meany was sentenced in Dublin Friday, to fifteen years' imprisonment. He made a speech, says the Herald's cable special, protesting against the sentence, on the ground that he was an American citizen, and claimed the protection of the United States Government. He desired ever having been paid by the Fenians in America, and indignantly scouted the overtures made to him by the British Government, who offered him to give evidence against the party accused of Burgoyne, and offered him his liberty in the possible if he plead guilty.

MOVEMENT IN GREENSBORO, ALABAMA.

Terrible Condition of Things in Central Alabama.

An Innocent Man Pursued.

The following letter, which we find in the Mobile Times of the 20th, shows a deplorable condition of society in the interior of Alabama:

GREENSBORO, ALA., June 17, 1867.

Hearing that the quiet town of Greensboro had become the scene of a great deal of excitement, or that a riot or general uprising of the blacks was feared, owing to the excitement caused by the killing of Alex. Webb (colored) by Orrick, I thought I would come over "to the front" and see what was going on. On arriving at the suburbs, in the evening, I found the town under a sort of military rule, and was confronted by armed men, and the well known challenge of "who goes there" rang out on the still night air. After presenting myself and stating who I was and "where bound for," I was allowed to pass the picket line. Arriving in the town I found it was paroled by squads of mounted, armed men, and every body was on the qui vive.

Soon after the killing of Webb, the negroes became dissatisfied at the earnest efforts of Sheriff Griggs to arrest the murderer, and accordingly, to pacify the negroes, who were making threats to burn the town, a warrant was placed in their hands for the arrest of Orrick, and from fifty to seventy-five were armed and sent out to search for the criminal —thus virtually surrendering the functions of the civil authorities into the hands of a mad mob of ignorant and incensed negroes. They proceeded around the country until the night of the fifteenth instant, when they went to the house of Mr. Gewer, where they believed Orrick was concealed. Mr. Gewer, hearing some noise, and believing that some disturbance had occurred among his hands, passed out in his night clothes to see what was up. As soon as the negroes perceived him, they cried out, "there he is," and commenced firing rapidly at him. Mr. Gewer supposing that a general uprising had taken place, immediately ran for the woods. Hearing his sister scream with fright, he supposed that his whole family were massacred. He wandered, frightened and panic stricken through the woods, heedless of his torn and bleeding feet, believing every tree or stump to be a black man, and afraid to communicate with any person lest he should throw himself into the hands of death, until the afternoon of the 16th, when he approached an old negro, driving an old gentleman quietly riding along the road, he hailed him, and ascertained that there had only a mistake been made; that he was taken for Orrick. After borrowing a pair of pants, he was about to go home, when he was surrounded and taken prisoner by blacks, and brought in great triumph into the town. In the meantime his friends, hearing of his arrest, gathered together in some force and resolved to liberate the innocent man at all hazards, and a collision was only kept off by his timely release, and by both parties being dispersed by the entreaties of men who felt that the safety of their families depended on the pacification of both parties.

The apprehension of further trouble was put to rest by the arrival of a company of regulars from Selma and a squad of cavalry from Montgomery, which troops had been telegraphed for by Major Pierce on receiving the first intelligence of the outbreak. The blue coats were a welcome sight to the people of Greensboro, and orders are now issued disarming all parties; a reward of four hundred dollars is offered by Governor Patton for the apprehension of Orrick, and all idles are to besent back to their respective places of employment. Orrick is still at large, and has forty-eight hours the start of his pursuers. Nothing further has become known of the cause or manner which led to the murder, no one having been near enough to hear any conversation which took place between Orrick and Webb. The citizens of Greensboro generally believe that the murder was unprovoked.

PARIS.

THESE different medicines represent the most recent medical discoveries, founded on the principles of chemistry therapeutics. They must not be confounded with secret or quack medicines, as th ir names sufficiently indicate their composition; a circumstance which has caused them to be appreciated and prescribed by the faculty in all countries. They differ from those numerous medicines advertised in the public papers only in so far as they are not to be had of druggists, as they are applicable only to but a very few complaints. The most striking proof of the value of these preparations is the secret and illegal imitations of which they have been the object, and the numerous counterfeits which have appeared on their success.

It is also indispensable to Females, Children and Infirm, and every constitution will find immediate relief from its use.
